

Detailed Publication Guidelines for Authors

Submission of articles to the Education and Society Journal taking into account the American Psychological Association (APA) Guidelines.

The Education and Society Journal is a digital media of the Academy of Educational and Social Studies (ACEES) oriented to the dissemination of rigorous studies in the fields of education and social sciences. In this sense, it accepts contributions resulting from empirical research (quantitative, qualitative or mixed), systematic reviews of scientific literature in education, theoretical essays and literature reviews. It will be published every six months, in August and December, and will be available in electronic format (open access journal). Regarding the quality of the articles, we take care to perform an academic peer review (arbitration) thanks to the theoretical, methodological and disciplinary diversity of our scientific committee and invited external reviewers.

The following parameters and guidelines apply to the studies that are sent to the Revista Educación y Sociedad for editorial evaluation, for which we recommend the use of the templates for the affidavit of authorship and authorization of publication, as well as the Title and Manuscript Template.

Ethical Aspects

The Education and Society Journal adheres to the following ethical aspects:

- Articles may only consider authors ordered according to their contribution or contribution.
- Contributors may not appear as authors. They may only be mentioned in the acknowledgements if deemed convenient.
- Experimental studies must have the informed consent of the subjects or participants, except in technically justifiable exceptions or situations.
- The Journal will proceed with the retraction of articles in case a lack of academic integrity is proven. These authors will never be allowed to publish in the Journal.
- Conflicts of interest - should they exist - must be declared and communicated to the editor of the Journal.
- The anonymity and confidentiality of individuals and institutions will be maintained in order to safeguard their integrity. An exception in this case is possible with written authorization and if it is reasonably justifiable.
- The authors of the articles undertake to respond to communications, queries and requests for information regarding the article.
- The Journal complies with the regulations in force regarding data protection.
- Peer reviewers respect the intellectual property and confidentiality of the articles.
- Authors will only submit the article to the Journal and may not submit it to other publications while it is in the process of evaluation.
- Authors must make explicit the criteria or national and international ethical norms they are applying in their studies.
- The Journal sanctions language that lends itself to any form of discrimination, undervaluation or segregation based on race, gender, social condition, functional diversity, religion or age.
- Authors are expected to conduct themselves in accordance with the precepts of academic integrity. In this case, any act of forgery, plagiarism, adulteration or intellectual appropriation will be sanctioned.

- The Education and Society Journal adheres to the Ethical Principles of Psychologists and Code of Conduct of the American Psychological Association (<https://www.apa.org/ethics/code>). The Editor of the Journal is obliged to respond to each of the queries referred to these principles. To this end, any person interested in publishing may contact the editor to make the queries he/she deems appropriate.

Publication standards

In a timely manner, the Education and Society Journal assumes the norms of the American Psychological Association (APA) in its 7th edition. These standards should be used for citations, references, tables (horizontal lines only) and figures. Within this framework, we assume the standards regarding writing style, informed consent and dimension.

Studies in Spanish, English and Portuguese are accepted.

Special formatting features

Editable Microsoft Word format

A4 sheet size

Candara font, size 11, single spacing

The maximum length of each article is 20 pages and 2 pages for reviews.

Tables and figures should be considered within the manuscript and as far as possible should be few in number. The names of tables and figures should follow the APA 7th edition format and it is recommended to use Candara font size 10.

The first page should include:

- b) After 16 point spacing, align the names of the authors to the left, use bold, Candara font and size 11. If there are two authors, separate the names with "and". If there are more than two authors, they should be separated by commas and put "and" before the last author. With superscript at the end of each name, the data and affiliation of each author should be listed at the bottom of the page in size 10 and italics, and the academic degree, position and institutional affiliation, e-mail and ORCID link should be specified.
